

Character Profile – Ra

Role: Supporting Lead

Age: Appears early 30s (Earth equivalent)

Species: Extraterrestrial

Physical Description:

Ra possesses an athletic, graceful build with the conditioning of a highly trained military operative. She moves with confidence and precision, combining elegance with remarkable physical ability. Although fit and capable in combat, she carries herself with an unmistakable sense of curiosity and wonder about the human world.

Personality:

Despite having lived for centuries, Ra often exhibits the emotional temperament of a late-teen Earth adolescent. She is impulsive, stubborn, passionate, and enjoys testing boundaries. Having visited Earth over many centuries, she has experienced periods where humans admired and even worshipped her, leaving her with a streak of pride and a tendency to believe she knows best.

Her greatest weakness is allowing emotion to guide her decisions before reason has a chance to intervene. This often places her at odds with those around her, and she initially finds herself opposing the protagonists.

Beneath her rebellious nature is a compassionate soul. Ra is fiercely loyal to her brother, Prometheus, whose wisdom and calm demeanor are often the only things capable of reaching her when her emotions take over. Although she begins the story as an apparent antagonist, she ultimately recognizes the greater threat facing humanity and becomes one of its strongest allies.

Background:

Ra and her brother, Prometheus, originate from a distant world whose name is never revealed. Their civilization possesses the extraordinary ability to manipulate surrounding elements and form physical objects from them. On their own planet, this ability was limited to relatively simple creations such as blades, shields, staffs, and other uncomplicated tools.

Earth's atmosphere, however, contains a far more complex mixture of elements, allowing them to create significantly more intricate objects than were ever possible on their homeworld. This discovery becomes an important part of their journey and serves as one of the film's underlying messages about humanity's influence on its own environment.

Throughout history, Ra has returned to Earth many times, where her abilities led some ancient civilizations to regard her as a divine being. Those experiences shaped both her confidence and her flaws, creating a fascinating balance between extraordinary power and youthful immaturity.

Abilities:

- Manipulates surrounding elements to create physical objects.
- Can form defensive equipment, weapons, tools, and complex devices.
- Highly athletic and trained in hand-to-hand combat.
- Possesses exceptional reflexes and endurance.
- Gains enhanced creative potential while on Earth because of the complexity of Earth's atmosphere.